Shri Girish Kathpalia, learned counsel for the respondents has submitted that the applicant had filed an earlier OA 1803/96 seeking more or less the same reliefs which was disposed of by order dated 21.2.1997(Ann.A.5). He submits that the case relied upon by the applicant in the present OA was also relied upon by her in OA 1803/96 which has already been referred to in para 4 of the earlier detailed judgement and therefore, the OA was disposed of in terms of Para 6. Interim orders stood vacated. In the circumstances of the case, we agree with the contention of the learned counsel for the respondents that this OA is barred by the principle of res judicata.

2. Today when the case came up for hearing learned proxy counsel Shri Harvir Singh on behalf of the applicant has submitted that in spite of their best efforts they could not contact the applicant nor they have received any further instructions or replies to their letters. He therefore, submits that counsel wish to withdraw from the case as they are unable to argue the matter further.

3. In the facts and circumstances of the case and having regard to the documents on record, as this application is barred by the principles of res judicata the same is accordingly dismissed. No order as to costs.
