ORDER

By Hon'ble Mr. S. Dayal A.M.

These are applications made under section 19 of the Administrative Tribunals Act 1985 and a common judgment is being given because the applicants have based their relief on the ratio of the landmark judgment of the Apex court in U.P.S.R.T.C. and another V/s U. P. Parivahan Nigam Shishukhs Berozgar Sangh and others, A.I.R. 1995 SC 1115. The reliefs claimed in these applications would be admissible, if it is sought according to the criteria laid down in the judgment. It is, therefore, necessary to understand the criteria laid down in the judgment.

2. Para 12 of the judgment requires the following to be kept in mind while dealing with claim of the trainees to get employment after successful completion of their training.

" (1) Other things being equal, a trained apprentice should be given preference over direct recruits.

(2) For this, a trainee would not be required to get his name sponsored by any employment exchange. The decision of this court in Union of India V/s V.Gopal, AIR 1987 SC 1227, would permit this.

(3) If age bar would come in the way of the trainee, the same would be relaxed in accordance with what is stated in this regard, if any, in the concerned service rule. If the service rule be silent on this aspect, relaxation to the extent of the period for which the apprentice had undergone training, would be given.

(4) The concerned training institute would maintain a list of persons trained year-wise. The persons trained earlier would be treated as senior to the persons trained later. In between the trained apprentices, preference shall be given to those who are senior. "

3. The first criterion laid down in the judgment is that ~~that~~ the entitled category to the benefits of the judgment are the apprentices who have successfully completed their training under the Apprentices Act 19. There are certain government departments like the Railways who induct candidates against regular vacancies in their department, call them apprentices, grant them stipend during their training and then post them after successful completion of their training on regular pay scales. The judgment is not applicable to this category of apprentices, as they are outside the purview of the apprenticeship Act. These apprentices are recruited with promise to absorb them against regular posts in the organisation on successful completion of their training. The apprentices under the Apprentices Act are placed against training slots and are not recruited based on number of vacancies available in the department. The objective of training them is to supply vocationally trained manpower for employment in the organisations needing similar skills as also for self employment. It is in this context that the judgment refers to section 22 of the Apprentices Act which does not make it obligatory for the Employer to offer employment to apprentice who has completed his period of training.

4. The second criterion is that that all apprentices trained under the Act do not qualify for employment as artisan in the trades in which they have received training. Only those who have successfully completed training would be^{so} entitled. Successful completion of training entails passing of examination which may be prescribed and obtaining a certificate from the Certifying authority. A candidate who may have completed the period of training but has not appeared at or passed the examination prescribed, would not be entitled to relief under the judgment.

5. The third criterion is that an apprentice would only be entitled to preference over a direct recruit if other things are equal. This means that an apprentice would have to compete with a direct recruit in the selection process and if both of these are found to be equal or obtain equal marks, the apprentice would be given the appointment. The apprentice shall have to participate in the selection process for this purpose which would require on the part of the apprentice to make an application as and when the post is advertised. This is necessary because candidature is voluntary. Since the recruitment process is time bound as filling up of vacancies is of utmost importance to any organisation for proper functioning of that organisation, the apprentices would have to adhere to the schedule prescribed for the process. This would involve making application on or before the^{last} date and participating in written practical and interviews as scheduled by the recruiting agency.

6. The fourth criterion is that if the Employers have to fill up the post by notifying it to employment exchange, they shall also have to advertise the post for the benefit of apprentices & others who may not be registered with the employment exchange. This is of utmost importance as otherwise the apprentices would be deprived of their opportunity to participate in the selection for want of information. It is for this reason that the judgment lays down that an apprentice would not be required to get his name sponsored by any employment exchange. In laying this principle, the apex court has followed the ratio of Union of India and others V/s N.Hargopal and others AIR 1987 SC 1231. The apex court has made further concessions in favour of those not registered with the Employment Exchange in Excise Supdt. Malkapatnam V/s K.B.N.Visheshwar Rao and others (1996) 6 SCC 216 and has laid down that wide publicity should be made of vacancies available. Such a stipulation was necessary to give opportunity to the best person available for the post sought to be filled.

7. The fifth criterion is that the apprentice would be entitled to relaxation of maximum age bar in accordance with provision of recruitment or service rules and if no provision for giving age relaxation to apprentice exists, an apprentice would be entitled to age relaxation to the extent of the period for which the apprentice had undergone training. An ambiguity can arise here that that apprentices with prior successful completion of I.T.I. certificate course in the trade given reduction in the period of training. It would be unreasonable to give the benefit of longer duration for age relaxation to those who have joined apprenticeship training directly and to give shorter span for age relaxation to those who had completed their I.T.I. certificate course prior to joining the apprenticeship training. It is, therefore, necessary to clarify that age relaxation would be to the extent of apprenticeship training prescribed for non I.T.I. candidates to all apprentices.

8. The sixth criterion is that Training Institute would maintain a list of persons trained year-wise and those trained earlier would be senior to those trained late and preference would be given to those who are senior. The list would become useful, if preference is to be given to one of the two apprentices who have been rated as equals for a job or where the organisation has provided slots for apprentices under its direct recruitment quota in order to ascertain seniority or otherwise of candidates.

9. The last criterion is that since the apprenticeship training has the broader objective of providing vocationally trained manpower and the process of selection should not restrict but enlarge the field of choice, the benefits to apprentices trained in government or Public Sector would be entitled to apply for the category of posts for which they have their apprenticeship training in those organisations and for consideration for selection to such posts. A Fitter trained in Railways would be entitled to apply for the job as Fitter in Ordnance Factories and would be entitled for the benefit of the ratio of UPSRTC and another V/s U.P. Parivahan Nigam Shishukhs Berozgar Sangh and others (Supra) This has been clarified in Ministry of Labour, Directorate General of E & T letter No. DGET 50/ /2/95 dated 26.2.1996 (annexure in G.O. 109 of 1997).

10 As far as the present lot of cases is concerned, they are for employment on the posts of tradesman. It would be necessary to mention in connection with the batch of cases before us that although the essential qualification mentioned is a certificate from recognised I.T.I. or equivalent in the appropriate field or trade, a tradesman, who has obtained certificate from recognised I.T.I. and followed it up by successful completion of apprenticeship training in the appropriate trade or a tradesman who has successfully completed apprenticeship training in recognised trade without going through I.T.I. training has to be considered equivalent to certificate holder in appropriate field or trade from recognised I.T.I. Hence those who have successfully completed their apprenticeship training in appropriate field or trade cannot be denied consideration and have to be given preference if they are rated as equal to an open market candidate. ~~The applicant~~

~~has appeared at the test but his result has been withheld in accordance with interim relief granted. His result may be declared.~~

It may be ascertained that the applicant possesses I.T.I. and apprenticeship certificates granted by N.C.V.T. No order as to costs.
