This Review Application has been filed against the order dated 03.12.2002 filed on 24.02.2003 after more than one year with an application for condonation of delay stating that the copy was issued on 14.12.2002, the reasons stated therein for condonation of delay is that the wife of the counsel had been suffering of Kidney problem and she died last week of December 2002, and the counsel was not available and the case file was with him and as such the review application could not be filed in time, for these reasons seeks for condonation of delay.

2. On going through the ground urged in the review application and also for the condonation of delay application, we are not satisfied that they are ~~not~~ sufficient in nature for condoning the delay in filing the review application and also scope of review is very limited looking from that angle of the matter we do not find good grounds to condone the delay, and accordingly the condonation of delay application is dismissed, consequently the review application is also dismissed.
