Applicant challenges A4 order passed by the Revisional Authority against the order of removal passed by the disciplinary authority on 14.3.1980. No appeal was filed and a revision was filed after thirteen years.

But learned counsel for applicant would submit that since no time limit is prescribed for filing a revision petition, the revision petition cannot be treated as belated. Even where there is no time limit ~~is~~ prescribed, reasonable standards must be applied. At any rate applicant did not avail of a statutory remedy of appeal and he was content to live with the adverse order for thirteen long years. We do not think that this is a fit case to exercise the discretion in favour of applicant. We dismiss the application. Parties will suffer their costs.

Dated the 13th day of June, 1995.
