CHETTUR SANKARAN NAIR(J), VICE CHAIRMAN

For alleged non-delivery of letters, a punishment of withholding increment was imposed on applicant. That was affirmed in appeal. According to learned counsel for applicant there was no proper enquiry, a proper enquiry would have brought out exoneration if not mitigation, and considering the prevailing state of affairs withholding of increment for three years is unduly harsh. He would also submit that no moral turpitude was displayed by applicant, as in other cases, where instead of returning letters undelivered, letters have been destroyed.

2. The contentions raised by applicant could be raised before the Revisional Authority and we are confident that the Revisional Authority will view matters with such compassion and objectivity, as the circumstances permit.

3. We dispose of the application permitting applicant to move the Revisional Authority. No costs.

Dated the 5th day of April, 1995.
